Press release, August 2026

Where print productivity meets ambition

At Printing United Expo, Las Vegas, swissQprint will demonstrate how print businesses can increase throughput, expand into high-value applications and produce with confidence. Visitors to Booth C1737 will experience the company's flatbed Generation 5 combining high productivity, broad versatility and reliability.

Deadlines don't move. Clients don't wait. swissQprint's Generation 5 flatbeds are engineered to keep pace with the most demanding production schedules. They deliver precise, repeatable output quality across long and short runs, even on the tightest turnarounds. From September 23–25, visitors can experience this live at Booth C1737 during real production demonstrations.

High-margin applications

Varnish printing, neon inks, haptic finishes and color-changing effects are not gimmicks. They help print businesses differentiate themselves, win premium jobs and increase profitability. swissQprint's Generation 5 makes them accessible and production-ready. A broad selection of print samples and displays at the booth will show what is possible and how these applications can create new revenue opportunities.

Scalable solutions for every operation

"Every print service provider comes to us with different goals," says Erik Norman, President of swissQprint America. "Some want higher throughput. Others want to expand into premium applications or replace aging equipment with a platform they can rely on for years. Generation 5 is designed to support any of these goals."

The Generation 5 range scales to suit a wide spectrum of operations, from high-volume facilities to specialist shops. Each machine is backed by a 36-month factory warranty, underlining the manufacturer's confidence in the long-term reliability of its systems. swissQprint specialists will be on hand throughout the show, providing live demonstrations and personal advice to help visitors identify the right configuration for their business.
